

New site pagelayout rolls out

Author: Cougar Liu<liucougar@scim-im.org>

The new pagelayout for this site takes effect today as you may have noticed. Hopefully you will enjoy this new arrangement. What's more, please expect other exciting functionalities soon, be tuned! This news will cover the details of what has been done and what will be done.

Latest Updates to the Layout

Frontpage Layout

In frontpage, you won't see the descriptions of each section any more. The latest published news will be listed instead.

Right Toolbar

The latest news/items toolbox in the right toolbar was removed to save more spaces. And the search box was also reallocated to its new home (stated below).

Page Layout for all

The top SCIM banner comes back again in full. On the top right corner of each page, "Donation" image, search box and user specific function links were added.

Planned Features to be Implemented

We are constantly working to provide more information and functionalities to the SCIM community, the users and developers. Enhancements are merged into this site continuously. Here, we are trying to state some of the planned features which will be implemented next. If you have any suggestions or concerns, or whatever you want to see, please leave comment below.

Public Editable Documentation Section (kinds of Wiki)

Every registered user on this site will have the ability to edit existing and to create new documentation pages. We will setup a framework and hopefully, end users will participate and enrich the content.

Community Support Forum

A dedicated SCIM forum will be incorporated into this site. You can ask for help or discuss SCIM related topics.

Other Helper Functionalities

- A stats page which will show the top contributors to the site/documentation/forum will be setup.▲
new Sitemap page will also be deployed to help users navigate in this site.
- Built-in notification in this site will be implemented, so you can ask this site to send you notification emails whenever your monitored contents are updated.▲ "my profile" page is also planned, where you can change your preferences and personal info and manage your notification.